

Carrie Powell is the founder of Union Volleyball Club which eventually became Carolina UVC. Carrie grew up playing volleyball in the Philippines and started every game for 4 years of high school. She played her college volleyball at Montreat-Anderson College, helping to start their volleyball program.

She has coached high school varsity volleyball for 29 years and started Union Volleyball Club (UVC) in 2002. In 2010 UVC became Carolina UVC.

She is currently director of the CUVC Travel Light program and a board member of the Union Volleyball Foundation which works towards helping players reach their goals of playing volleyball with scholarship awards.